FAREWELL BANQUET FOR REV. PARISOE

Officers and Men of Presbyterian Church Entertain This Evening for Minister at Grand Hotel.

Officers and men of the First Presbyterian church will entertain at a farewell banquet this evening at the Grand Hotel in honor of the Reverend George Edwin Parisoe, whose term as pastor of the Janesville church will expire on Sunday. He has accepted a place as pastor of the University church at Laramie, Wyoming, the largest church in the state, having a membership of 900, and known as the mother church of the Wyoming Synod. Tonight's affair is in charge of a committee headed by Allen P. Lovejoy and Henry M. Hanson. At the church service Sunday morning the Rev. Parisoe will give his farewell sermon. There will be no evening service. Mr. Parisoe will leave Janesville next Saturday morning for Laramie, where he will join Mrs. Parisoe and children. They will leave on Monday, Oct. 6, for Laramie. It is expected that there will be a full attendance of the Presbyterian congregation for the special farewell service in Mr. Parisoe's honor tomorrow morning.

W. H. Lake of This City was Friend of Man Murdered by Italian Bandits at Hammonville, N. J.

W. H. Lake of 408 Ravine street, was a friend of Henry Ryder of Howell, Mich., who was killed in a hold-up by a band of Italian bandits near Chicago, but yesterday's top at Buffalo was 15c below and Pittsburgh 30c lower, with Omaha and St. Joseph 70c below Chicago for best lots. New prevailing market values, while 50c above low point this week, are still $1.45 to $1.55 below August 31, highest day on record, when top was $1.50 and the average $1.12.

Receipts for today are estimated at 600 cattle, 12,000 hogs and 2,000 sheep, against 1,149 cattle, 8,631 hogs and 552 sheep a year ago. Average price of hog at Chicago yesterday was $9.36, Thursday, $10.12 a week ago, $8.25 a year ago and $7.70 two years ago.

Good Cattle Are Scarce. A third of the 2,000 cattle here yesterday were consigned direct to packers from outside points. Market without quotable change. Best steers offered sold at $10.00. Quotations: Prime, 10 to 12 year olds, $10.55 to $11.35. Poor to good steers, $8.90 to $10.40. Yearlings, fair to fancy, $6.90 to $11.30. Fat cows and heifers, $6.40 to $9.50. Canning and butcher cuts, $7.75 to $8.35. Feeding cattle, 600 to 1,000 lbs., $4.75 to $7.75. Poor to fancy yearlings, $3.25 to $12.75. Western, range steers, $6.35 to $9.40.

Many Direct Hogs Received. More than a third of yesterday's hog receipts were consigned direct to packers from outside markets, where prices were much lower than at Chicago. Closing trade here was strong, with prospects higher for today. Quality fair, with average weight 175 lbs. Quotations: Bulk of sales, $9.30 to $9.55. Heavy butchers and ship-ping, $9.75 to $10.05. Light butchers, $9.75 to $10.05. Light bacon, 145 to 150 lbs., $9.40 to $10.00. Heavy packing, 250 to 400 lbs., $9.20 to $9.55. Mixed packing, 200 to 250 lbs., $9.20 to $9.55. Rough, heavy packing, $8.90 to $9.15. Poor to best pigs, 60 to 135 lbs., $7.00 to $9.30. Sows, 50 lb. dockage per head, $9.00 to $11.30. Lambs largely 10 to 15c higher than Thursday. Top natives, $10.25 and best westerns, $10.30. Sheep steady. Quotations: Lambs, common to fancy, $9.15 to $10.30. Carlings, poor to good, $7.50 to $9.00. Weathers, poor to best, $7.50 to $8.85. Ewes, inferior to choice, $3.75 to $7.50. Bucks, common to choice, $4.50 to $5.50.

Attention W. R. C.: There will be a special meeting at the hall Monday afternoon at 2 p. m. to practice for inspection. All members are requested to be there, especially the officers. (By) T. C. Rector, president; Anna Morse, secretary.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

"Wanted—a boy." How often we see these very common words in the paper. Wanted—a boy to errands run. Wanted for everything under the sun. All that the men today can do. Tomorrow the boys will be doing too. For the time is coming when the boys must stand in place of men.

Wanted—the world wants boys today. And she offers them all she has for boys.

Honor, wealth, position, fame. A useful life and a deathless name. Boys to shape the paths for men. Boys to follow the plow and pen. For the world's great task is never done.

The world is anxious to employ. Not just one, but every boy. Whose heart and brains will ever be true. To work his hands shall find to do. To feed the hungry, to clothe the poor. To road awake, to evil blind. Heart of gold without alloy. Wanted—the world wants such a boy.

—Exchange.

The world is full of wants, and while the boy don't realize it the eyes of the world are watching him to discover whether he will meet the demands which will soon confront him.

Statistics show that there are eight million boys in this country. This great army of restless humanity is the nucleus for the men of the next generation. They come from all kinds of homes and all sorts of environments, but they are here and very much alike in many respects.

The boys of this fair land are fortunate in being saved from the vortex of war which is just now cursing the nations of the old world. The boys of these distant countries have never known the carefree life of our own country. The carefree life has been transformed by the grim necessities of war, and every boy has become a soldier in embryo.

Many of them are in the trenches and many more are attempting to do the work of their fathers and brothers, who have answered the call of the colors. The war presents so many serious problems, and is so fraught with sorrow and suffering that the boy is seldom thought of, yet the fact remains that it is a blight on the boyhood of the old world which will leave a scar for generations to come.

When a circus comes to town every boy is fired with ambition to become a performer, and every neighborhood is entertained by amateur clowns, while the barn or a tent on the lawn houses the attractions. If the circus was a continuous performance many of our boys would be found in the sawdust ring.

The war of the old world is a continuous war, for more than two years it has been the one topic of absorbing interest. The small boy parades the street with wooden gun, and breathes the polluted atmosphere of hatred and bloodshed. His father is a hero at the front and he aspires to be like his father.

These boys—and there are millions of them—are forced to live under abnormal conditions at an age when they need the best that the home and society can give them. The spirit of hate and the dwarfing of sensibilities will be a handicap to them for years to come, and the education which comes to them through the hard school of experience is not a blessing. The wreckage of war is never appreciated until the aftermath, then it becomes appalling. History is making so fast, and the battlefields are so numerous, that no mind can grasp its great significance.

The hospitals are crowded with boys who have been physically wrecked for life. Blind and maimed they are compelled to face a future which is destitute of hope and full of discouragement.

The boys at home, whose age protected them from active service, are also the victims of loss. The current of life has been changed for them. Widowed mothers are struggling to keep the home together, and in many cases they are not equal to the strain. The loss of the war will find an army of waifs, and the boy without a home will be largely in evidence.

He has lost not only his home, with its protecting influences, but the opportunities which the home provides, and while he may make good, the chances are against him.

The American boy has a hopeful outlook on life. The world's war does not disturb him, and he is more interested in the comic supplement than in the telegraph page, with its daily story of slaughter. This is perfectly natural and all right. There is nothing elevating or helpful about the record of crime or carnage.

About the only thing that troubles the American boy is his father. However good he may be he is often hostile and always free to express his opinion. If it were possible for the home and school to be in closer touch it would be better for the boys of the land and many of them would be kept in school, without resistance, at an age when compulsion seldom wins.

The boy never thinks very far ahead, unless his mind is fixed on something that he wants, and is bound to have, and then there is no peace in the family until his want is realized.

The trouble with too many of us as parents, is that we shirk the responsibility of thinking for our boys. We expect too much of them at an age when we have no right to expect anything but love and affection.

The boy comes to us as a sacred trust, and we, and not the boy, are responsible for seeing that he is prepared for life, so that when he answers the call of "Boy wanted!" that he may possess the ambition and ability to fill the bill.

The business world does not demand or expect very much of the boy. It has patience with him, if he shows disposition to learn and is honest, but the home must develop the disposition and moral character.

The story is told of a boy who was obliged to leave school in his early teens and go to work to help support his widowed mother. He went to the city and walked the streets in search of a job. A sign on an office window, "Boy wanted," attracted his attention, and he applied for the place.

The man at the desk looked him over and liked his appearance. He said to him, "I suppose you have references?" But the boy said, "No, I am a stranger in the city."

The man turned away and said, "Sorry, my boy, but we can't employ you without knowing something about you."

When the boy reached the door, on the way out, he stopped and said, "Here is a letter from my mother, which came yesterday. Perhaps you would read it." The letter was read, while the boy waited—one of those motherly letters which told him how much she loved him and how much confidence she had in him; how much she missed him, and how earnestly she prayed that God would keep him and help him.

The man who read the letter, sat with it in his hand, thinking. Memory carried him back through the years to his own boyhood and the mother who stood by him when he was a stranger in a strange city looking for work.

Then he said to the boy, "That letter is all the reference you need. A boy with that kind of a mother is bound to make good. Hang up your hat and I'll tell you what to do."

It's only a step from boyhood to young manhood and there was never a time when young men were in such active demand as today. The world has a place for every last one of them. The age in which we are living is a young man's age, and the rewards which come to honest, faithful service are as certain to arrive as time is to pass.

Every boy owes it to himself to prepare for an active future, so full of promise. It study seems irksome, stay by it. You will be out of school a long time when you quit. The school is the foundation of knowledge and the building of a life, without a foundation is a hard undertaking. Every boy is wanted and success waits for the boy who fills the want with credit to himself.

(This week's monologue.)

By one flapper taking leave of another in the middle of a crowded pavement.

Well, goo! by, then, Floss. I'm fearful glad I ran into you. Good-by, don't forget to find out that about Ed—you know. Toots. Seen Albert lately, Floss? Ain't she a spectacle!

Any one can tell at a glance. And the little nut had such stunning hair, too. Well, I'm off, Floss. Goo! by. Call me up some time. Two-o-two-o.

Oh, Floss, I forgot. I saw a friend of yours yesterday. You know—the fellow with the lovely dimples. Yeh, that's the one. Awful sis, ain't he? Well, don't forget to call me up. You know my number, no excuse.

"Beer in Smelter's lately, Floss? Well, don't. That handsome clerk ain't there any more. There's a little red-headed one now, the most disliking thing you ever saw! You ought to saw the look I gave him when I left. Toots, Floss. If you don't call me up, I'll never speak to you again."

"By the way, Floss—"

(By no means the end.)

Temperance Talks

(By Temperance Educational League.)

Two Dry States and Wisconsin. Wisconsin has a population of 2,333,869. During 1914 it produced 5,278,399 barrels of fermented liquors, there being only three other states in the Union with so large a production. During the same year it ranked fourth among all the states in the number of its liquor dealers, the number being 11,187. These statistics show that Wisconsin is decidedly wet.

Kansas and North Dakota, two dry states, have a combined population of 2,265,063, almost equal to that of Wisconsin. In those two states there are 549 persons in insane asylums, while in Wisconsin the number is 6,387, nearly twice as many. In Kansas and North Dakota there are 816 persons in poor houses, while in Wisconsin the number is 1,776, more than twice as many. In Kansas and North Dakota the records show 78 per cent of the children of school age are in schools, while in Wisconsin only 65.0 per cent are enrolled. During the last ten years wages in Kansas and North Dakota have increased 134 per cent, while in Wisconsin during the same period the increase has been 49 per cent. In Kansas and North Dakota 61.9 per cent of homes are owned by working people free from debt, while in Wisconsin the percentage is 54.9 per cent. The above statistics taken from federal, state and municipal records. We do not contend that temperance is the sole cause of the unfavorable comparison of our state but we cannot fail to recognize it as one of the principal causes. It is a subject well worth the consideration of every one interested in Wisconsin and the welfare of its people.

AGRICULTURAL and GARDEN DEPT

ALLEN B. WEST, Director

Question—I want to make a chicken house to accommodate about 25 fowls. Should I build it with board or cement floor? How shall I make it warm?

Answer—The construction of poultry houses has changed materially in the last few years and it is no longer considered necessary to have warm houses to insure hens laying in winter. Experiments have shown that cold, dry houses are much to be preferred to warm damp ones, and if the houses are built with the idea of making them warm, it is almost impossible to prevent their being damp. A flock of twenty-five hens will require about 150 square feet of floor space, and the building may be square or long, as convenient. Other things being equal, a square house is cheaper for a small flock. The building should not be so wide but that the sun can reach the back. Otherwise it will be damp. Fourteen feet is a convenient width if there are no alleys. The house should be built as low as possible without danger of the attendants bumping their heads against the ceiling. The foundation should be of concrete deep enough to prevent heaving by frost and high enough to prevent surface water from entering. The single ditch roof is easiest to build. It gives the highest vertical front exposed to the sun's rays and throws all the rain water to the rear. A gable roof is used if it is to be used for a gutter space which may be filled with straw, helping to make the house warm and dry. The floor may be of cement or of earth. In favorable climates the latter is preferable, especially if it is covered with straw.

Question—What is to be done with salicy or vegetable oils in the fall?

Answer—They may be harvested and placed in sand in the cellar, or they may remain in the ground. In testing it as a rule seed corn will keep for two years if properly cared for; it may keep three and even longer, but the safest way is to test it, and it is very easily tested. It has been given for testing in the Gazette and may perhaps be repeated in the spring.

Question—What shall be done with the bulbs of gladioli? May they be left in the ground like tulips or will freezing injure them?

Answer—Gladioli bulbs are tender and are killed by freezing. When the tops are killed the bulbs should be dug and removed to the cellar or other place where they may be kept warm and dry, and set out in the spring when danger of frost is past.

MARK INDIAN VILLAGE SITE ON KOSHKONONG

PLACE WHERE WHITE CROW'S FOLLOWERS LIVED A CENTU-RY AGO, FOUND AFTER YEARS OF SEARCH.

EXERCISES ARRANGED

H. L. Skavlem of This City Discovered Site—State Societies Will Attend Dedication on Oct. 15.

Wisconsin archaeologists and many from other states of the great northwest, will meet on the shore of Lake Koshkonong a week from tomorrow to attend the dedication of a marked site of the White Crow village site, recently found after years of search.
Official recognition of the occasion is based on the joint meeting of the Wisconsin Historical society and the Wisconsin Archaeological society to be held in connection with the dedicatory ceremonies.

The meeting and its nature is of special significance to Janesville residents, and in fact to all who reside in southern Wisconsin. It will be under the direct auspices of H. L. Skavlem of this city and will be on his farm located on the shore of the lake, one of the largest Indian villages in this then sparsely settled sections of the west.

Mr. Skavlem knows more about this Indian village than any other archaeologist in the country. For the past ten years he has been delving into old and musty records to perpetuate to lovers of the past the traditions, customs and history the real story of this great Indian village which in 1830 was located on the shore of Lake Koshkonong, and at that time had a population of 1,200.
Mr. Skavlem's work has been rewarding and the results of his long and tedious investigation will be the subject of one of his addresses.

The Janesville man was the original discoverer of the site of the village. For years archaeologists knew that this great camping ground was located on the shore of the lake or in close proximity. Despite years of search, however, they were unable to determine the exact spot where it stood.

Chief, White Man's Friend.
White Crow, Kaw-ray-Kaw-Sau-Kaw, was the leader of the band. Among those Indian chieftains of the early days of the nineteenth century who first began to take up the civilization and look to the white man as leader.
White Crow goes down in history as being among these red men. His prominence in the final termination of the Black Hawk war is little known, but records show him to be one of the few chiefs who refused to join the forces of this famous redskin on his memorial expedition of massacre and plunder up the valley of the Rock River.

On a high cliff overlooking the lake, where nearly a century ago the village stood, there is a mound of earth and weighing tons. On this monstrous granite piece the marker will be placed. Mr. Skavlem himself will draw away the cloth which unveils the face of the rock and show for the first time a tablet which will mark for years to come the site of this once great village.

Lived in Bark Huts.
Mr. Skavlem will address the gathering on the subject of the village and the first facts which for years archaeologists have been seeking. His subject is entitled "White Crow and His Early History." One interesting point he will allude to and describe is that the men of this village lived in huts of bark rather than in the wigwam or tepee of skins from the animals of the forest.

Mr. Skavlem will have on hand an exhibit of stone implements and other Indian relics. He will demonstrate the use of the bow and arrow and show how the men of this village were able to work from flint and zirconite and other rocks his arrowheads, smooth as glass or jagged and rough as flint. Many of the many other contrivances used in his every day life. Mr. Skavlem, after years of study of stone Indian tools, discovered the method, a method which will enable archaeologists to determine as much and more as does the discovery of the long lost art of hardening copper means to the metallurgist. From the shores of the lake he will gather and more as does the discovery of the long lost art of hardening copper means to the metallurgist. From the shores of the lake he will gather
and more as does the discovery of the long lost art of hardening copper means to the metallurgist.

In addition to the meeting of the two state organizations, the Fort Atkinson chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Carcajou Hunting club, the organization of Janesville and Beloit sportsmen
who have a big lodge and preserve on the lake, are to enter in the work of entertainment of all visitors who attend the occasion. The Fort Atkinson chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Carcajou
Hunting club, the organization of Janesville and Beloit sportsmen
who have a big lodge and preserve on
the lake, are to enter in the work of entertainment of all visitors who attend the occasion. The Fort Atkinson chapter of the Daughters of the

the lake, are to enter in the work of entertainment of all visitors who attend the occasion.

The Indian village site is near Sumner. Automobiles from this city and vicinity are advised and directed to Edgerton. From the Tobacco City the Main road to Fort Atkinson should be followed. The Carcajou club and a half mile from Edgerton and near here is the village site.
The roads are good in this direction and plenty of parking space will be available on the club's preserve.

BIG CROWD ATTENDS CONTESTANTS' PICNIC

CROWD ASSEMBLED AT JANES-
VILLE COMMERCIAL CLUB FILLS STREETS—NEARLY FIFTY CARS ON TRIP.

AUTOS CONVEY PARTY

Party Joined in Beloit by Many More People—Beautiful Day Helps to Make Affair A Great Success.

With a perfect autumn day in their favor, the picnic given by the Community Co-operation committee of the Janesville Commercial club for the participants in the various contests conducted by that organization throughout the summer, started this morning with a crowd of over three hundred. The men in charge of the affair have been working in their efforts to get as many of the citizens of Rock county at the picnic as was possible.
The automobiles had been secured to carry the people, and a special interurban car for any that could not be taken in machines.

At the last moment, however, a number of men on whom the committee had counted, volunteered their cars and everyone was able to go this way rather than in the street car.

Guests Gather Early.
By half past eight the streets about the Commercial club were thronged with happy boys accompanied by parents and other members of their families, waiting eagerly to be off on the big picnic planned for the day.

The groups stood expectantly following every movement of the officials who were assigning the boys to the automobiles donated by the citizens of Janesville. A large number of farmers came in from neighboring communities with their own cars, so the streets were crowded with motored of all sizes and descriptions.

At the last moment, however, a number of men on whom the committee had counted, volunteered their cars and everyone was able to go this way rather than in the street
car.

At Beloit another squadron of about twenty-five machines met the Janesville people with a large number of boys and older people from the southern part of the county.

The crowd lived up to all the expectations of the men in charge, but the only number one but in spirit. Everyone was eager to see all there was to see, and to learn about the various things that the picnic party had to visit.

SOX TAKE THIRD; NOW WANT FOURTH

Whitewash National League Rivals, 3 to 0, Yesterday—Lefty Williams Beats Pendergast.

The White Sox rode rough shod over the Cubs in the third game of the series yesterday, making it three straight victories. Three terrific doubles from the war club of Joe Jackson was a big factor in the victory for Rowland's team. Lefty Wil-iams went along smoothly, scoring a shutout, while Pendergast was derricked in the seventh and McConnell replaced him. The change in temperature kept the crowd down. Followers of the White Sox are crying for four straight and the next game will probably end the series.

With two down in the third Eddie Collins walked and Jackson's second double brought him home. Wortman threw out Felsch for the third out.

A pair of doubles in the sixth gave the Sox their final run. Jackson came through with his third double of the game and Felsch followed with a double to left, scoring Jackson.
Felsch was caught trying to stretch the lead. The Sox threatened to score again in the seventh, but Mann threw out J. Collins at the plate after Eddie Collins had singled.

Tom Powell's Minstrels Coming.
The coming engagement of the Tom Powell Peerless Minstrels is waited for with delight as after the surfeit of the old-time real big bang boom minstrel shows is the one that made our forefathers laugh and so it will continue on for all time. It is the successful minstrel of later days that has made its mark in the walks of the drama. Many of the leading actors, singers and managers were minstrels. The Frohman's, Haymans, Hoochieys were all minstrel managers. Booth, Barrett and Jefferson all began as minstrels. American minstrelsy is in the hands of the producers. The approval stamp of "The Best" has been placed on the production, and the entire detail of the attraction has been have become famous, it is interesting to note that they are all trivial and even flippant.

It seems to be characteristic of the Anglo-Saxon to prefer tripping measures and a brisk liveliness in his singing songs. No one will ever write one to order to fill the bill. It will be picked up—some forgotten rag-time—and the composer will be a millionaire in a few months.
So far no one song has become popular in the camps in Mexico and along the Rio Grande. There are as many songs as men.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY TO HOLD CONVENTION

Madison, Wis., Oct. 7.—Nine special addresses have been scheduled for the meeting of the Wisconsin State Historical society to be held here on October 19, the program of which was announced by Superintendent M. M. Quate today. The sessions of the organization will be held in the state historical library. This is the sixty-fourth annual meeting.
The principal paper to be presented to the meeting will be read by Captain Arthur L. Conger, U. S. A. Army service schools, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., on the subject of President Lincoln. The war statesman. In the preliminary announcement made public today it is pointed out that the European war has forced upon every layman the realization that economic forces are among the most powerful factors both in causing wars and determining their course. Captain Conger is one of the foremost authorities in the field of military history and science.
Joseph B. Thorburn of Norman, Okla., will speak on the "New Light on the Career of Nathaniel Pym." He was one of the four sergeants to cross the continent on the Lewis and Clark expedition. Rev. C. A. Verwyck of Bayfield will give some of his recollections and the beginning of the Norwegian press in this country will be told in a paper by Albert O. Barton of Madison. The first Norwegian newspaper, the first illustrated magazine, were issued in Wisconsin. "The Dream of a Northwestern Confederacy" is the subject of a paper by W. C. Cochran of Cincinnati. Mary Elizabeth Moore, "Walden Woods," author of the first book of verse published in Wisconsin, will be the subject of a paper by P. V. Lawson of Menasha. "The Story of the Watertown Railway Road Fight" will be reviewed by Dr. William F. Whyte, formerly of Watertown, now of Madison. Dr. Whyte is the president of the state board of health. The history of Brevet Major Isaac N. Earl, a Wisconsin boy who did noble service in the civil war, will be told by Newton N. Calvar of California.

MADISON OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR NEW Y. M. C. A. BUILDING

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Oct. 7.—A campaign to raise $150,000 will be started next week for the purpose of erecting a new Y. M. C. A. building here. The work will start October 15 and will close on October 21. The committee in charge of the work is composed of Burr W. Jones, E. L. Cross, W. J. Teckmeyer, A. T. Rogers, Rudolph Hokanson, Magnus Swenson, F. W. Montgomery, Richard Lloyd Jones, O. D. Brandenburg, Dr. R. H. Jackson, W. J. Teckmeyer and D. W. Mack. An easy payment plan has been arranged for subscribers. They will have sixteen months to pay for their subscriptions. The campaign will open with a big citizens' dinner at the Presbyterian church on October 13.

NEWS NOTES—MIDLAND

OF DAILY DEAN

Enrico Caruso is the latest star of grand opera to take a turn in the movies. He will soon put the finishing touches on his first picture, according to authentic reports, and will begin on another. He had almost completed this first picture when he suddenly decided to take a pleasure trip to Italy. His leading woman, Eleanor Board, recently had this to say concerning his plans:
"The picture we were making when Caruso went to Italy is known by the working title, 'The Fascinating God.' Some noted 'extras' will be seen in some of the scenes. To give the proper atmosphere, Caruso induced some of the Metropolitan stars to appear in flashes, including Edith Mason, Gatti-Casazza, Pasquale Amato and several others."
Miss Black, who plays the part of Alma Blossom, was selected by the singer himself, because, as he said, "she is of a romantic Italian type of beauty." Maybe the fact that several New York artists have pronounced her head perfect in shape had something to do with it, too.

JUST LIKE A WOMAN!
Kittens Reichert, the diminutive actress had to fall fifty feet from a cliff in a new picture, now being screened. Of course, there was a net—a good, strong net beneath to catch her enroute, but, nevertheless, few persons would try the stunt as morning exercises.
Kittens did her part nobly. She fell without a single quake, cry, or quiver.
Five minutes later she screamed at the sight of a city form on her shoes.

VETA SEARL IS NEW STAR OF SCREEN.

Frank Powell, the man who first saw the picture possibilities of Theda Bara and Blanche Sweet, believes he has made another discovery.
This time it is Veta Searl, a young woman described as the fortunate possessor of "personality plus," on whom the Columbus-like eyes of the director have rested. Hilbert, unknown to stage or screen, Miss Searl will shortly be seen in prominent part in support of Creighton Hale, Linda A. Griffith and Sheldon Lewis in "Charity."
"I have always believed," says Mr. Powell, "that one of the most important factors contributing to the success of the player in pictures is that intangible something which, for lack of a better term, we call personality. Given that and with it intelligence, add an inherent sense of the fitness of things, and you have the stuff that makes stars."
"I was commencing the production 'Charity' I met Miss Searl. She impressed me as possessing in abundance those qualities which make for prompt and lasting success, and I engaged her on the spot."

Cleo Madison's baseball team has attracted much attention among those

VAUDEVILLE OPENS AT THE NEW MYERS

Clever Acts Go Over Big on Opening Night of Newly Inaugurated Program at Bransky's New Myers Theatre.

The audience that greeted the opening vaudeville bill at the New Myers Theatre last evening was a large one and very enthusiastic over the five acts as presented. Every act made a hit, because every act is a good act.

The first number, The Kilties, featured the masculine member in a light and airy act that is most unusual and difficult, involving a backward somersault on the wire while wearing heavy riding boots. The other half of the act was seen in a singing and Scottish dancing number.
How and Howe have a funny act, a burlesque on mind reading, which furnishes plenty of fun during some twenty minutes. Their comedy is clean and the laughs they create run all through the time they are working.

The Two Walton Sisters, a couple of youngsters, are the most versatile vaudeville team ever seen in Janeville. They sing, dance, play, tell jokes, and do all very well indeed. Round after round of applause greeted them, to which they responded graciously.

"Bob" Dailey, our own "Bob," sang a number of late songs in his inimitable and magnetic manner. Mr. Dailey is always a favorite with Janeville audiences and last night was no exception. Mrs. Dailey joined him in a delightful duet, during the chorus of one of his songs. Irving Berlin's latest success was introduced and was very much appreciated.

The e are seven people in The American Minstrels, the last act on the bill, and every one of them an artist. Instead of the usual minstrel idea there are five pretty girls and two men. The regular run of minstrel jokes are interspersed with some extra good singing and dancing by the girls. Jim Stewart, a long time minstrel favorite in Janeville, who has been here any number of times, has lost none of his ability to make people laugh. It's good just to hear him stammer.
He has able assistance in his partner.

Manager Bransky deserves credit for producing a bill of this character. His liberal support will be his cannot be doubted if he continues to offer this class of vaudeville weekly.

who know that star. But what they do not know is that many more youngsters not so clearly associated with her name have been recipients of her kindness. Bats and balls galore could be traced to her generosity for Miss Madison, above all things, cannot deny youthful aspirations.

Another film dealing with the effect of divorce on the children will soon be released. Florence LaBadie will star, being directed by Frederic Sullivan. Agnes Johnston wrote the scenario.

JOSEPH CONLIN TO APPEAR IN CONCERT

Joseph Conlin, the young American tenor who is to appear in concert under the auspices of the Carroll Council No. 596 Knights of Columbus at the New Myers Theatre on Wednesday, October 11th, is a product of Wisconsin, and one of America's foremost young tenors.
That the quality of Mr. Conlin's art is always of the highest standard is evidenced in the fact that his fifth (5th) Milwaukee appearance he sang to a paid admission audience numbering 5,178. Their unusually active and sincere appreciation of his artistic ability was the most enduring test of his attractive power.
Conlin's success with American audiences has been instantaneous. His message is clear and ringing with the spirit and optimism of youth. His Irish folk songs are a delight and his critics are warm in their praise of his faultless interpretation of the songs of Erin as well as his masterful reading of Arias from the operas and standard oratorios.
It is expected that this concert will prove a stellar attraction for the concert season and that the many friends of the Knights of Columbus will flock to the theatre in an effort to put the stamp of their approval on the organization's efforts.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

In reply to many queries concerning Halloween games:

APPLE PARING.

Each guest, receiving an apple and knife is requested to peel the apple without breaking the skin, and then swing the par around the head and let it drop to the floor. The letter formed in the initial of the future mate's name.

PARTNERS.
The players divide themselves into ladies and gentlemen. The ladies produce and imitate some most impetuous gentlemen, and vice versa. The gentlemen then proceed to choose lady partners. One of the players next undertakes to question the couples. The questions being put to the ladies, the gentlemen answer for her. "Do you like to be a partner?" the lady is asked, and the gentleman may reply, "Yes, I adore him." Whatever the reply, the lady is forbidden to deny it; if she does, she must pay a forfeit. But retaliation comes, for when all the ladies have been questioned the gentlemen turn to the ladies and ask questions. "What is your favorite occupation?" the question may be, and the lady may answer, "Dressing my shoes." Making mud or anything ridiculous that occurs to her.

NUTS TO CRACK.
Breads and paper with following questions are given to each guest: 1. A letter of the alphabet and an article made of tin. 2. A name applied to one of our presidents. 3. A country. 4. The names of two boys. 5. A country. 6. That which often had a treasure. 10-A vegetable. The more describes ten different nuts which are to be guessed. The answers are: 1-Walnut. 2-Butterfly. 3-Pecan. 4-Hickory. 5-Beech. 6-Brazil nut. 7-Chestnut. 8-Peanut. 9-Peanut. 10-Peanut.

TRY YOUR LUCK.
In a dish of mashed potatoes place a ring and a dime. Each guest is provided with a spoon with which to eat the potatoes. Whoever gets the ring is to be married within a year. The dime signifies single blessedness, and the dime riches or a legacy.

THE NEEDLE GAME.
Each person floats a greased needle in a tub of water. Impelled by attraction of gravitation needles will act very curiously; some cling together, others rush to the margin and run. The manner in which one person's needle behaves toward another causes amusement and is supposed to be suggestive and prophetic. It is best to place the needles on a piece of tissue paper and then spread that on the water. It will soak rapidly and sink to the bottom, and the needles will float.

RING AND GOBLET.
Supply each guest with a ten-cent wedding ring, a glass, one-fourth filled with water. The ring is suspended in the water by the string and the alphabet repeated slowly. Whenever the ring strikes the glass, the alphabet should be begun over again. In this way the name of the future mate is spelled out.

APPLES AND FLOUR.
Suspend horizontally from the ceiling a stick three feet long. On one end stick an apple and on the other a small bag of flour. Set the stick whirling. Each guest takes a turn in trying to bite the apple end on the stick. It is amusing to see the guests receive dabs of flour on the face. The guest who first succeeds in biting the apple gets a prize.

PUMPKIN ALPHABET.
Carve all the letters of the alphabet on a pumpkin-sized pumpkin. Put it on a dish and set it on a stand or table. Each guest in turn is blindfolded and given a hatchet, then led to the pumpkin where he or she is expected to stick the pin into one of the letters on the pumpkin, thus indicating the initial of the future life partner.

best get the feeling of peace and worship; after that outdoors and sunshine (especially if you are shut up in an office on week days) and communion with congenial friends and music.

Music Gives Us The Want-To-Be Feeling.

Beautiful music is the essence of the true Sunday spirit. One Sunday afternoon stands out from all the rest in my childhood. I spent it with a family who had advanced ideas. For the first few hours, children and grown-ups joined in a wonderful game of hide and seek all over the big yard and in the barn. Then the whole family gathered in the big living room and we had an hour of music. We listened to classical music, sang hymns and some of the best of the old folk songs.

I went home, tired, sleepy and happy, and full of that longing for something better and more beautiful in my life that music always gives.

Was that a well-spent Sunday, or not?

Household Hints

VEAL SERVED ECONOMICALLY.
Get thirty cents' worth of lean veal to try; cut in small pieces, roll in flour, fry in butter and lard until brown on both sides; make a four-gravy over it, let simmer until ready to serve; season with salt and pepper. Serves six persons.

Another way to serve veal: Chop, cut in small pieces, roll in cracker crumbs and egg, fry until brown in butter and lard. Make a milk gravy over and let simmer until ready to serve. Season with salt and pepper.

Another way: Cut veal in small pieces and stew until tender; then make a flour-gravy in the broth and serve the gravy over hot baking powder biscuit. This is good as chicken.

"HURRY-UP" CAKE.
Two eggs, one cup granulated sugar, one cup sweet or sour cream, one-half teaspoon soda, two teaspoons baking powder, pinch of salt, flour to make a good batter (there's difference in flour, so you must judge when stirring).

You can favor it if you like. It's splendid with or without any favor. Add a dash of cinnamon to one layer if you have something extra nice. This is a cheap cake, but very good.

TO DRESS AND COOK A GOOSE.
If the goose is killed at home, hang it up by the feet to drain out the blood. Pick dry all the feathers that you can pick off while warm.

After you have picked all the feathers off, plunge the fowl into a pail of scalding water; wrap in a towel or some suitable cloth while steaming hot, and let lie for half an hour. When dry, you can rub all the little fine down off.

Remove the entrails, wash thoroughly, add a handful of salt to the last water; wash well inside. Hang up and freeze, if possible. A goose or a duck should be dressed the same, and always the day previous to roasting. Make any kind of dressing you like. If oysters, use crackers; if bread, use a sprinkle of sage. A young goose would not require baking as long as an old one, of course. A good fat goose will turn out a quart of oil. This should be poured off all but enough to make the gravy. Make gravy by browning the fat in a pan, then add a quart of water, and a quart of milk (water will do). Some use butter, but a goose is very rich of itself.

Roast a goose often. Turn the fowl over once in the roaster. Rub with table salt and pepper before putting in the oven.

CANNING AND PRESERVING.
Cucumber Pickles—One gallon cold vinegar, one cup salt, one cup ground mustard, one-half cup brown sugar, mixed spices to taste. Mix and pour cold on the pickles when packed in jars.

Pepper Relish.—Twelve red peppers, twelve green peppers, four onions. Chop, pour on boiling water and let stand five minutes. Drain. Pour on more water and let stand ten minutes. Drain thoroughly. Add one cup vinegar, three tablespoons sugar, three tablespoons salt. Mix and cook fifteen minutes after it begins to boil.

Chili Sauce.—Forty-eight ripe tomatoes, sixteen large onions, twelve green peppers. Chop and add four cups vinegar, six tablespoons sugar, eight tablespoons salt. Cook till done, then bottle.

Tomato Catsup.—Four quarts tomatoes; cook and strain. Add the following: one-half teaspoon cayenne, one tablespoon mustard seed, one-half teaspoon whole cloves, one teaspoon allspice (or three tablespoons mixed spices), placed in bag and boiled with tomatoes. Add one tablespoon sugar, one cup vinegar, salt.

Chili Sauce.—Nine large ripe tomatoes, two large onions, chopped fine, four green peppers (seeds removed), one tablespoon salt, two cups vinegar, four tablespoons sugar, one teaspoon each of ginger, cloves, allspice and cinnamon. Stir and boil one hour.

Angel Jelly.—Two cups cranberries, three large quinces, stew cranberries and quinces until tender. Pour into jelly bag and let drip over night. Use a pound of sugar to a pint of juice. Boil juice fifteen minutes before adding sugar. Boil until it jellies.

SAVES GLASS DISHES.
Get a glass salad bowl at the 10-cent store, stand it on a folded towel in a dishpan and completely cover with cold water. Put on fire and bring water to a boil; all rays die, and remain in water till it is perfectly cold. You can serve the hottest food in dishes treated in this way without danger of breaking.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT.

"My niece suffered with itching eczema for nearly six months. Her face and body were covered with blisters which broke open and oozed, and as soon as the blisters opened a few days later more eruptions would appear. Her face was a fright to look at and she could not sleep nights. 'Then I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using two boxes of the Cuticura Ointment together with the Cuticura Soap she was entirely healed.' ## Training a Husband

Marian Refuses to Wear Her Winter Hat a Third Season and Her Vanity Pains Morris.

"Why don't you go and see the doctor? You move around here half sick all the time. There is no sense in it," Morris gazed accusingly at Marian's pale face.

"We have no money to spend on doctor bills. It is just a little attack of the grippe. I shall be all right in a few days. Marian closed her eyes wearily.

"Nonsense. As if it would not be the poorest economy to neglect yourself and get sick. You would have a heavier expense to meet besides the inconvenience of all the household."

"suppose he means himself," thought Marian, a little scornfully. "A little help now would probably end the whole trouble," continued Morris.

"I shall be all right. All I need is a chance to rest a little and get caught up with my sleep. My 'rest cure' only wore me out. Don't worry about me, dear," Marian laid a hand on his arm.

"No, I do not propose to worry. I shall see that you have something to make you stronger." The one was almost belligerent.

"I know what I need, and I do not propose to go without a winter hat to pay an unnecessary doctor bill."

"If that is not just like a woman," broke in Morris. "I never would have thought you were so vain."

"My vanity as you call it, has been so guarded that I guess there is little need to worry about it. I have worn the same hat untouched for two winters and you yourself said last spring that it was a good thing."

"That is different. At any rate, I intend to get a new one this winter," Marian's tone was decided, "so I do not mean to put the thing clear out."

"Well, what did the doctor say was the matter with you?" he asked. "He did not say, for I did not ask him," Marian was lying on the couch. "Have I got to call him to the house? You take a fine way to save, I must say," Morris was unquestionably irritated. "You certainly have not," Marian sat up. "I am perfectly able to judge of my own condition, and I shall be all right in a day or so unless you worry me into a fever nagging at me. It is a thousand pities you can't show your sympathy in some other way." "I suppose you would be made perfectly well by a new winter hat," sneered Morris. "I should like to try that remedy. As you are interested in the come, suppose you give me the money for it," Marian held out her hand. "I haven't any," was the glum reply. "You seemed to have money for the doctor," persisted Marian. "The doctor can wait; he doesn't have to be paid at once." "Good idea. So can the milliner. I never thought of that," broke in Marian with conviction. "I can arrange that all right." She rose and left the room. (To be continued.)

ROCK COUNTY PHONE GIRLS PLAN FOR ANNUAL, OCT. 20.

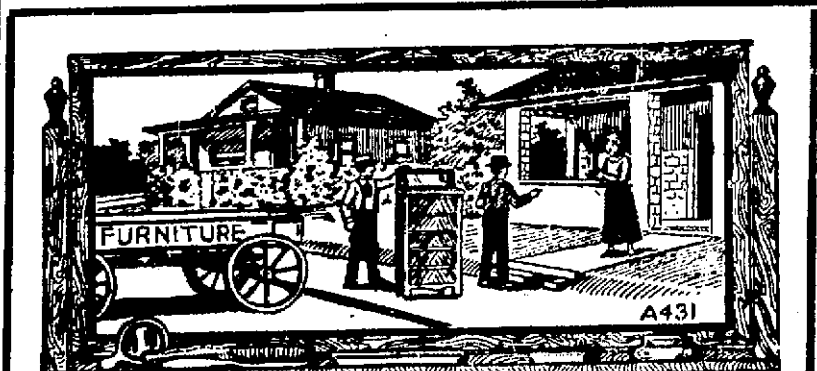

Rock County Telephone company operators within a few days will issue invitations for their annual dancing party to be held on Oct. 20, two weeks from this evening, at Assembly hall. The Woodawn orchestra has been engaged for the occasion.

Misses Helen and Josephine McCarthy, Anna and Mae Fitzpatrick and John Harvey and George McGloughlin form the committee in charge of arrangements.

"Mother Earth" is said to have originated from the following incident: When Junius Brutus, following the death of Lucretia, formed one of the deputation to Delphi to consult the oracle as to which of the three would succeed Tarquin, the oracle answered: "He who shall first kiss his mother." Junius instantly threw himself prone on the ground exclaiming, "Thus, then, I kiss thee, Mother Earth," and he was elected consul.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

THE COMFORTABLE ANGLE OF ADDUCTION.

Ordinarily curves or straight lines are supposed to be more beautiful and more comfortable than angles in clothing and furnishings, but in shoes both looks and personal comfort demand an angle which nearly all women's shoes and many men's shoes, as sold in the shops, lack. That is the angle of adduction.

Now, this adduction is not a disease, as the shoe manufacturers seem to think. It is a healthy thing to have in your shoes. Adduction means turned or drawn inward. If your foot is not already deformed by fashionable shoes, you may see for yourself that the normal foot turns inward by bisecting the sole with a line from the tip of the middle toe and the heel with another line from the middle of the heel; the two lines will meet at a distinct angle bending inward.

In selecting shoes for comfort and efficiency, as well as for looks after they have been worn a few weeks, it is therefore wise to insist on that angle of adduction. You can get it if you will be just a little opinionated and not let the shoe clerk pose as a "doctor." Just take the pair of shoes, set them side by side on the floor; if the soles veer widely apart toward the tips of the toes, thrust them back at the clerk with an impatient frown, and ask him if he has anything for a normal foot. If he seems puffed at your strange behavior, ask his pardon for intruding, and lie yourself off to another store where the clerk may be "orthopedic" specialists or near-doctors, but will endeavor to sell you what you want.

Another point in comfortable shoes which we are buying them, is the shape. It should be under the outer border of the sole where the weight comes, not under the middle line. And if you are willing to pay a little more, a heel not over two inches high nor less than two inches wide is advisable, particularly for girls or women much upon their feet. An inch high is better for men.

LOWER the heel, the more strain on the ankle, calf, hip and back in maintaining balance standing or walking. Scores of women imagine themselves victims of "kidney" or "female" complaint, whereas they are suffering merely from French or Cuban heels.

When the ball of the foot stretches the shoe out of shape, that is proof that the sole is too narrow. Try a size wider until you get a fit that you don't have to stretch, and the shoe will look and feel better until worn out.

But don't forget the comfortable angle of adduction. You might even give the words on the clerk so that you can know as much "orthopedic" as he knows. Adduction, remember, walking like a duck, with your feet turning inward—you can't forget it now.

THAT SUNDAY FEELING
We were sitting on the verandah in the twilight one Sunday evening not long ago. Inside the house some one was softly touching the keys of the piano.

The music paused for a moment and one of the group, a young woman who had recently been married, said thoughtfully, "Now, I know I am really happily married."

"Because I can sit here in the twilight listening to music and not feel sad, and on Sunday, too. Why, there used to be a time when just the Sunday feeling itself made me depressed and unhappy."

"That Sunday feeling?" Doesn't the phrase arouse an echo of understanding in your heart?
Those Long Tedious Afternoons
It brings back to me long, tedious Sunday afternoons in my childhood when toys were put away, and too much time and too little to do made a deadly and wearisome combination. It brings me pictures of streets with people in their Sunday best parading up and down them, and myself obsessed by a strange distaste for my kind.

There is a saying that we Americans keep Sunday, while the Continentals spend it. There is some meat in that just.

Would Not For Words Advocate
Laziness
I know the good people who think our observance of Sunday is altogether too lax already will lift up their hands in horror at this. One moment: I would not for worlds have Sunday desecrated. I want it to be the day for peace and worship and rest.

But do not think that these things are incompatible with happiness and normal living. My ideal Sunday is this—attendance in any church where you can

CHAPTER XXII.

Duane had decided to go to Ord and try to find the rendezvous where Longstreth was to meet his men. These men Duane wanted even more than his horse, for it was Poggie who needed to be found and stopped. Poggie and his right-hand men!

The night of the day before he reached Bradford, No. 6, the mail and express train going east, was held up by train-robbers, the Wells-Fargo messenger killed over his safe, the mail-clerk wounded, the bags carried away. The engine No. 6 came into town minus even a tender, and engineer and fireman told conflicting stories. A posse of railroad men and citizens, led by a sheriff Duane suspected was crooked, was made up before the engine steamed back to pick up the rest of the train. Duane had the sudden inspiration that he had been checking his mind to find; and, acting upon it, he mounted his horse again and left Bradford unobserved.

In rode at an easy trot most of the night, selected an exceedingly rough, roundabout, and difficult course to Ord, hid his tracks with the skill of a long-hunted fugitive, and arrived there with his horse winded and covered with butch. It added considerably to his arrival that the man Duane remembered as Fletcher and several others saw him come in the back way through the lots and jump a fence into the road.

Duane led Butler up to the porch where Fletcher stood wiping his beard. He was hatless, vestless, and evidently had just enjoyed a morning drink.

"Howdy, Dodge," said Fletcher, laconically.

Duane replied, and the other man returned the greeting with interest.

"Jim, my boss's done up. I want to hide him from any chance tourists as might happen to ride up curious-lik."

"Howdy, haw! haw!" Duane gathered encouragement from that chorus of coarse laughter.

"Wal, if them tourists ain't too darned sneaky the boss'll be safe in the 'dobe shack back of Bill's here. Feed him, too, but you'll hev to rustle water."

Duane led Butler to the place indicated, had care of his welfare, and left him there. Upon returning to the tavern porch Duane saw the group of men had been added to by others, some of whom he had seen before. Without comment Duane walked along the edge of the road, and whenever one of the tracks of his horse showed he carefully obliterated it. This procedure was attentively watched by Fletcher and his companions.

"Wal, Dodge," remarked Fletcher,

as Duane returned, "thet's safer'n prayin' for rain."

Duane's reply was a remark as laconic as Fletcher's, to the effect that a long, slow, monotonous ride was conducive to thirst. They all joined him, unmistakably friendly. But Knell was not there, and most assuredly not Poggie. Fletcher was no common outlaw, but, whatever his ability, it probably lay in execution of orders. Apparently at that time these men had nothing to do but drink and lounge around the tavern. Duane set out to make himself agreeable and succeeded. All morning men came and went, until, all told, Duane calculated he had seen at least fifty. Toward the middle of the afternoon a young fellow burst into the saloon and yelled one word:

"Posse!"

From the scramble to get outdoors Duane judged that word and the ensuing action was rare in Ord.

"What's all this?" muttered Fletcher, as he gazed down the road at a dark, compact bunch of horses and riders. "First time I ever seen that in Ord! Wish Phil was here or Poggie. Now all you gents keep quiet. I'll do the talkin'."

The posse entered the town, trotted up on the dusty horses, and halted in a bunch before the tavern. The party consisted about twenty men, all heavily armed, and evidently in charge of a clean-cut, lean-limbed cowboy. Duane experienced considerable satisfaction at the absence of the sheriff who he had understood was to lead the posse. Perhaps he was out in another direction with a different force.

"Hello, Jim Fletcher," called the cowboy.

"Howdy," replied Fletcher. At this short, dry response and the way he strode leisurely out before the posse Duane found himself modifying his contempt for Fletcher. The outlaw was different now.

"Fletcher, we've tracked a man to all but three miles of this place. Tracks as plain as the nose on your face. Found his camp. Then he hit into the brush, and we lost the trail. Didn't have no tracker with us. Think he went into the mountains. But we took a chance an' rid over the rest of the way, seel'n Ord was so close. Anybody come in here late last night or early this mornin'?"

"Nope," replied Fletcher. His response was what Duane had expected from his manner, and evidently the cowboy took it as a matter of course. He turned to the others of the posse, entering into a low consultation. Evidently there was difference of opinion, if not real dissension, in that posse.

"Didn't I tell ye this was a wild-goose chase, comin' way out here?" protested an old hawk-faced rancher. "Them hoss tracks we followed ain't like any of them we seen at the water-tank where the train was held up."

"I'm not sure of that," replied the leader.

"Wal, Guthrie, I've followed tracks all my life."

"But you couldn't keep to the trail this feller made in the brush."

"Gimme time, an' I could. That takes time. An' heah you go hell-bent for election! But it's a wrong lead out this way. If you're right, this road-agent, after he killed his pals, would hev rid back right through town. An' with them mailbags! Supposin' they was greasers? Some greasers has sense, an' when it comes to thiev' they're shore out."

"But we ain't got any reason to believe this robber who murdered the greasers is a greaser himself. I tell you it was a slick job, done by an ordinary sneak. Didn't you hear the facts? One greaser hopped the engine an' covered the engineer an' fireman. Another greaser kept flashin' his gun outside the train. The big man who shoved back the cur door an' did the killin'—he was the real gent, an' don't you forget it."

Some of the posse sided with the cowboy leader and some with the old cattleman. Finally the young leader disgustedly gathered up his bridle.

"Aw, hell! Thet sheriff shovod you off this trail. Mebbe he hed reason! Savvy that? If I hed a bunch of cowboys with me—I tell you what, I'd take a chance and clean up this hole!"

All the while Jim Fletcher stood quietly with his hands in his pockets.

"Guthrie, I'm shore treasurin' up your friendly talk," he said. The menace was in the tone, not the content of his speech.

"You can—an' be damned to you, Fletcher!" called Guthrie, as the horses started.

Fletcher, standing out alone before the others of his clan, watched the posse out of sight.

away from the others into the bar-room. When he looked into Duane's face it was somehow an entirely changed scrutiny.

"Dodge, wherd you hide the stuff? I reckon I git in on this deal, seel'n I staved off Guthrie."

Duane played his part. Here was his opportunity, and like a tiger after prey he seized it. First he coolly eyed the outlaw and then disclaimed any knowledge whatever of the train-robbery other than Fletcher had heard himself. Then at Fletcher's persistence and admiration and increasing show of friendliness he laughed occasionally and allowed himself to swirl with pride, though still denying.

Later, when Duane started up announcing his intention to get his horse and make for camp out in the brush, Fletcher seemed grievously offended.

"Why don't you stay with me? I've got a comfortable 'dobe over here. Didn't I stick by you when Guthrie an' his bunch come up? Supposin' I hedn't showed down a cool hand to him? You'd be swingin' somewhere now. I tell you, Dodge, it ain't square."

"I'll square it. I pay my debts," replied Duane. "But I can't put up here all night. If I belonged to the gang it'd be different."

"What gang?" asked Fletcher, bluntly.

"Why, Cheseb'dine's."

Fletcher's head nodded as his jaw dropped.

Duane laughed. "I run into him the other day. Knowed him on sight. Sure, he's the king-pin rustler. When he seen me an' asked me what reason I had for bein' on earth or some such like—why, I up an' told him."

Fletcher appeared staggered.

"Who in all-fired hell air you talkin' about?"

"Didn't I tell you once? Cheseb'dine. He calls himself Longstreth over there."

All of Fletcher's face not covered by hair turned a dirty white.

"Cheseb'dine—Longstreth!" he whispered, hoarsely. "God Almighty, you braced thet!" Then a remarkable transformation came over the outlaw. He gulped; he straightened his face; he controlled his agitation. But he could not send the healthy brown back to his face. Duane, watching this rude man, marveled at the change in him, the sudden checking movement, the proof of a wonderful fear and loyalty. It all meant Cheseb'dine, a master of men!

"Who air you?" queried Fletcher, in a queer, strained voice.

"You gave me a handle, didn't you? Dodge. Thet's as good as any. Shore it hits me hard. Jim, I've been pretty lonely for years, an' I'm gettin' in need of pals. Think it over, will you? See you manana."

The outlaw watched Duane go off after his horse, watched him as he returned to the tavern, watched him ride out in the darkness—all without a word.

Duane left the town, threaded a quiet passage through cactus and mesquite to a spot he had marked before, and passed the night. His mind was so full that he found sleep aloof. Luck at last was playing his game. He sensed the first slow heave of a mighty crisis. The end, always haunting, had to be sterily blotted from thought. It was the approach that needed all his mind.

Late in the morning he returned to Ord. If Jim Fletcher tried to disguise his surprise, the effort was a failure. Certainly he had not expected to see Duane again. Duane allowed himself a little freedom with Fletcher, an attitude hitherto lacking.

That afternoon a horseman rode in from Bradford, an outlaw evidently well known and liked by his fellows, and Duane heard him say, before he could possibly have been told the train-robber was in Ord, that the loss of money in the hold-up was slight. Like a flash Duane saw the luck of this report. He pretended not to have heard.

In the early twilight at an opportune moment he called Fletcher to him, and, linking his arm within the outlaw's, he drew him off in a stroll to a log bridge spanning a little gully. Here after gazing around, he took out a roll of bills, spread it out, split it equally, and without a word handed one half to Fletcher. With clumsy fingers Fletcher ran through the roll.

"Five hundred!" he exclaimed.

"Dodge, thet's damn handsome of you, considerin' the job was'n't—"

"Considerin' nothin'," interrupted Duane. "I'm makin' no reference to a job here or there. You did me a good turn. I split my pile. If thet doesn't make us pals, good turns an' money ain't no use in this country."

Fletcher was won.

Pleasant Fields of Holy Writ

Shakespeare and the Bible; And Cain talked with Abel his brother and they came to pass when they were in the field that Cain rose up against Abel his brother and slew him. Genesis IV, 8.

How the knave jowles it to the ground as if it were Cain's jawbone, that did the first murder.

Hamlet, Act V, Scene 1.

THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON. Fourth Quarter. Lesson II. Acts XXIV, 10-21. October 8, 1916.

PAUL BEFORE FELIX.

That tri-part scene in Felix's judgment hall well represents the state and spirit of the prevailing religions of that day. Felix's character shows too well how utterly effete the heathen faith was, either as a spur to conscience or as a curb to passion. The high priest in his turn represents a religion which had missed its noble calling to be an almoner of grace to the nations of the earth, and had gone into the broadening of phylacteries and tithing mint, anise, and cummin; and while engaged in these small matters could give way on occasion to a blind rage against those who dared to point out a more excellent way. At the third angle in that congress of religions stood Paul, incomparable example of the power and beauty of Christianity.

Paul is his own lawyer. His manly courtesy toward his judge is in marked contrast to the fawning language of the Sanhedrin's hired attorney. His straightforward account of himself carried with it irresistible conviction of innocence. The court stood adjourned only for want of evidence to convict or a bribe to acquit.

Luke's lively narrative quickly shifts the scene from the judgment hall to the audience chamber, to which the spirit of curiosity next summoned Paul. In the sumptuous Herodian palace, on a richly tessellated pavement, beneath a stuccoed and gilded ceiling, stand slaves unattended in Tyrian purple, which recline the auditors who seek to drive away ennui by listening to the novel tenets of this learned enthusiast.

Paul's keen and disciplined power of discernment instantly strips the scene of its showiness. He sees before him a slave tossed up to a governor's seat by a roll of fortune; but a slave still, led captive by his greed and lust. One might think Paul the prisoner; but "No more he feels upon his high raised arm."

The ponderous chain, than does the playful child. The bracelet formed of many a flowery link.

No court preacher was livelier of his message. Paul did not tax Felix with unrighteousness, but before a governor whose only principle of ruling was self-interest, avarice and cruel, yielding, it has been said, the power of a tyrant in the spirit of a slave, before such a one he held up the perfect mirror of that righteousness which the law of God requires. He did not tax the astonished and beautiful Herodian princess with her infidelity to her lawful husband or her licentious relation to the man beside her, but before them both, and with a steady hand he held the flawless mirror of that absolute continence even in thought upon which Jesus insisted. As the climax of his fearless discourse Paul pictured the great assize in which all must appear before a judgment-seat, whose very color is emblematic of the immaculate character of Him who sits on it, and to whom all must give account of every deed done in the body, whether good or evil.

As Felix saw his hideous likeness in the faithful mirror of Paul's sermon, and in the lengthening vista beheld the great white throne (so unlike his own) of a Judge whose ermine never yet was soiled, he was seized with an inward terror, which may or may not have made itself apparent in a physical tremor. But see the inveterate selfishness of sin! The next moment it lightened its grip upon the poor bondman who thought him free and became a type of those whose spiritual life is ruined by a like procrastination. Avarice, most persistent of vices, asserted itself. Felix expected a ransom for Paul. He had his eye on the large sum of money known to have been brought up to the Church at Jerusalem. Felix trembled. He did not reform.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

Among the cities with which Herod decked Palestine, Caesarea was the chief jewel. Nothing but marble was used in building. Its temple, amphitheater, and artificial harbor were wonderful. In this city Herod ruled like a second Solomon.

This splendor of purple, marble, and gold was a veneer over a corruption so extreme as to defy description and belief. The city was the exponent of the evil spirit of its founder. It was a hotbed of treachery and lust.

Paul's appeal from Jerusalem to Caesarea was an appeal from malice to cupidity. What could Paul expect from Felix, united as he was, adulterously, to a princess of the fourth generation from Herod—Felix who stopped not with the assassination of a high priest, and whose hand never ceased itching for a bribe, who precipitated the Jewish wars and the destruction of Jerusalem?

That is a superficial view of the case which imagines that the high priest appeared in person against Paul because of his pique at being called a whitewash. He was there because the crisis of Judaism had come. The current festival was evidence of the deep inroad Christianity had made. The masterful leadership of Paul was recognized. A blow fatal to him would also paralyze the new faith.

What retaliations of fortune history records! Two years later Paul and Felix are again in the same city. It is Rome. Paul is set free, as most believe; but Felix wears a double chain—one on his soul, as well as one on his body—and so makes his disgraceful exit from human annals.

The son of Drusilla by Felix, and Drusilla herself are said to have perished in the eruption of Vesuvius. The appropriate ending of the Herodian race! Most cruel, licentious, and tyrannous of history! One finds himself wondering whether the princess mother, yet so young and of such dazzling beauty, but sinful as ever, did not remember among those frightful and lurid scenes the words of him who in her far-away Caesarea palace spoke of righteousness, temperance, and a judgment to come.

October 8, 1916. Exodus XIV 8-15. NEW WORK TO BE UNDERTAKEN.

The law of supply and demand is as universal and constant in its application as civilization. It is as regnant in the civic, moral and spiritual matters as in bread-stuffs, in raw materials or manufactured objects. The environment of the individual or the society, of whatever character it may be, must be studied with care to discover what it requires for repair or betterment. Then the resources of the individual or the combined assets of a group of individuals is to be estimated. This is of the nature of taking account of stock. The inventory must be complete and accurate to be of real value. Undertaking something for which the resources are insufficient is the road to bankruptcy. It is a case of "over the hill" to the law of the religious and civic life. There are ways—augmenting moral resources. Means should be weighed with precision over against the discovered opportunity. Experience has taught in the present war, at fearful cost, that it is entirely futile to advance until the first line defenses have been hammered to pieces by artillery. The same wisdom must be shown in every advance for social cure, reform—betterment.

JOHNSTOWN

Johnstown, Oct. 7.—About eighty-five of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McKee were given a pleasant surprise on Tuesday evening, the occasion being the 38th anniversary of their marriage. After refreshments were served, Mrs. James Godfrey of Lima, in behalf of the guests, presented them with a beautiful set of china dishes and a linen luncheon cloth in memory of the occasion.

Mrs. McKee and Mrs. Jones entertained the guests at the home of the former. After the business meeting closed they were highly entertained with some fine selections on the piano.

Messrs. and Messdames A. Peterson, and J. Haight spent Sunday at the Mr. and Mrs. F. Niskern home in Dar-jen.

Mrs. C. Craig is improving from her late illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Carter will move to Milton Junction where they will run the cafe. We wish them success in their new business.

Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Hall and family of Milton have moved into their new home recently purchased.

Mrs. Peterson of Richmond has moved here in her son, Andrew's, house, for the winter.

Mrs. Quigley and daughters are spending a few days in Leyden, guests of her mother, Mrs. Kennedy.

And the butcher never laughed after she left.

"Have you anything to say in your defense before sentence is pronounced against you?" asked the judge.

"Only one thing," said the convicted burglar. "The only thing I have objected to in this trial was being identified by a man that kept his head under the bedclothes the whole time I was in the room. That is not right at all."

The newly elected mayor of a small town was fond of show, so he did his best to be inducted into office in weather favorable to pay processions. At his suggestion this notice was put into the local papers three days before his installation.

"On the occasion of the installation of the new mayor the fire brigade will be reviewed in the afternoon if it rains in the morning and in the morning if it rains in the afternoon."

A Chicago woman who had received a legal summons to appear in a certain court at a certain period was much put out thereby.

"I have certainly received the citation, but I shall not appear—could not, in fact. Not only am I not socially acquainted with Judge Jones, but the whole tone of his communication is so impossible that I absolutely refuse to know him."

Might Purchase.

Clerk—"Now, see here, little girl, I can't spend the whole day showing you penny toys. Do you want the earth with a little red fence around it for one cent?" Little Girl—"Let me see it."—Life.

"Dressed, of course," she said. "My husband is very fond of chicken dressing."

"Dinner Stories"

Mrs. Newwed went into the butcher shop.

"Want a chicken for roasting," she explained.

"Dressed or undressed?" asked the butcher.

"The autumn of your life will bring you no regrets if you properly cultivate your summer opportunity"—says the Old Philosopher.

Autumn is essentially a furniture buying season, and if you make your purchases here you will have no cause for regret. This is an opportunity that every home lover should take advantage of.

THE GAZETTE'S MOTORIST PROBLEM DEPARTMENT

(Published Saturdays.)

Motorist Department. The Gazette.—Occasionally you advise cutting out the muffler. I am told there is no muffler cut out on any engine. Please tell me what a cut-out looks like and what it is intended for.

At present the muffler cut-out is installed on very few cars. The explosion from the engine passes through the muffler so as to stop the noise. This takes away about 10 per cent. of the power. The muffler cut-out is simply a large valve in the exhaust pipe under control of the driver. By opening it, less power is returned, which is useful in some cases, such as climbing hills. By closing it, the exhaust it relieves the engine of the noise and explosion and helps to keep the engine cool. It is clipped and must be removed and cleaned.

Side Lights ON THE Circus Business

By D. W. WATT
Former Manager Burr
Robbins and Later
Treasurer of Adam Forepaugh Circuses.

I have often been asked the question, "Do not the average performers with a circus, especially the athletes, die young?" I know of no better answer to this than to give you the details as near as possible of the life of the greatest, if not the greatest, bareback rider the world has ever known.

This man is James Robinson, one of the greatest heroes of the ring. In Australia, Java, London and Berlin he once was the center of interest. He was in Berlin when the present emperor was born.

James is now eighty years old and is a wonderfully young old man. With his wife, who had always accompanied him on his tours, he spends five months of every year at Green Lake, Wis., and the rest of the time in Louisville, Ky. The third of June always finds Jimmie at the lake and his thin, erect figure is a feature of this interesting little resort.

Practically every day his launch rides the deep waters, and he is engaged in fishing. None is more constant in the pursuit of the noiseless art. When asked if his present profession did not seem rather tame compared with the past, he answered: "Oh, it's healthy being out in the air so much, and there's some excitement when you get a bite."

Mr. Robinson, who was born in Boston, covered his own country both by wagon road—he entered the circus business back in 1845—and later by railroad. He went to Europe three times, remaining there from three to five years. At different periods he toured Australia, the Dutch and British Indies. His tour around the world involved travel by land and water of over five thousand miles. In Australia in 1876, while under the management of Mr. Bailey, some disagreement arose over the completion of the performer's contracts for the extended tour, Mr. Bailey awakening rather late to the fact that it was a long, long way zigzagging around the world, and there were disheartening intervals between gate receipts. His famous bareback rider proved a good business man, proved he could protect a contract as well as ride a horse; his agreement with the showman had to be respected to the letter. The irony of it was that the contending parties went to the same lawyer for legal advice. However, this was a brief moment of friction between them and did not disrupt a long and close friendship. Mr. Robinson looks upon Mr. Bailey as the great showman of the world, and spoke of him with more enthusiasm than he did of Barnum, and gave details illustrative of Bailey's daring, foresight, management, and his general trustworthiness.

Jimmie has reached the age of four score without the aid of intoxicants of any sort. He is an excellent advertisement of abstinence, or of outdoor living, or of both. His eye is clear, his gaze direct, and his movements if slow are sure. His wit is neat and ready, but his kindness does not allow of its use for a weapon. One is immediately impressed by the cleanliness and the dignity of this little old man, a dignity compounded of self-respect and friendly intention and a proper reserve.

Word was received in Janesville a few days ago of the death of Mrs. Laura Webster, mother of Mrs. Burr Robbins. Mrs. Webster died at her home in Lawrence, Mich., where she had lived for more than sixty years. She was a woman beloved by all who knew her. Mrs. Webster was ninety years of age, and had lived those many years in perpetual sunshine. If a dark cloud ever passed through her life, no one knew it but she. In the late seventies and early eighties she spent several winters the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Burr Robbins in Janesville, and many of the old residents will learn of her death with regret.

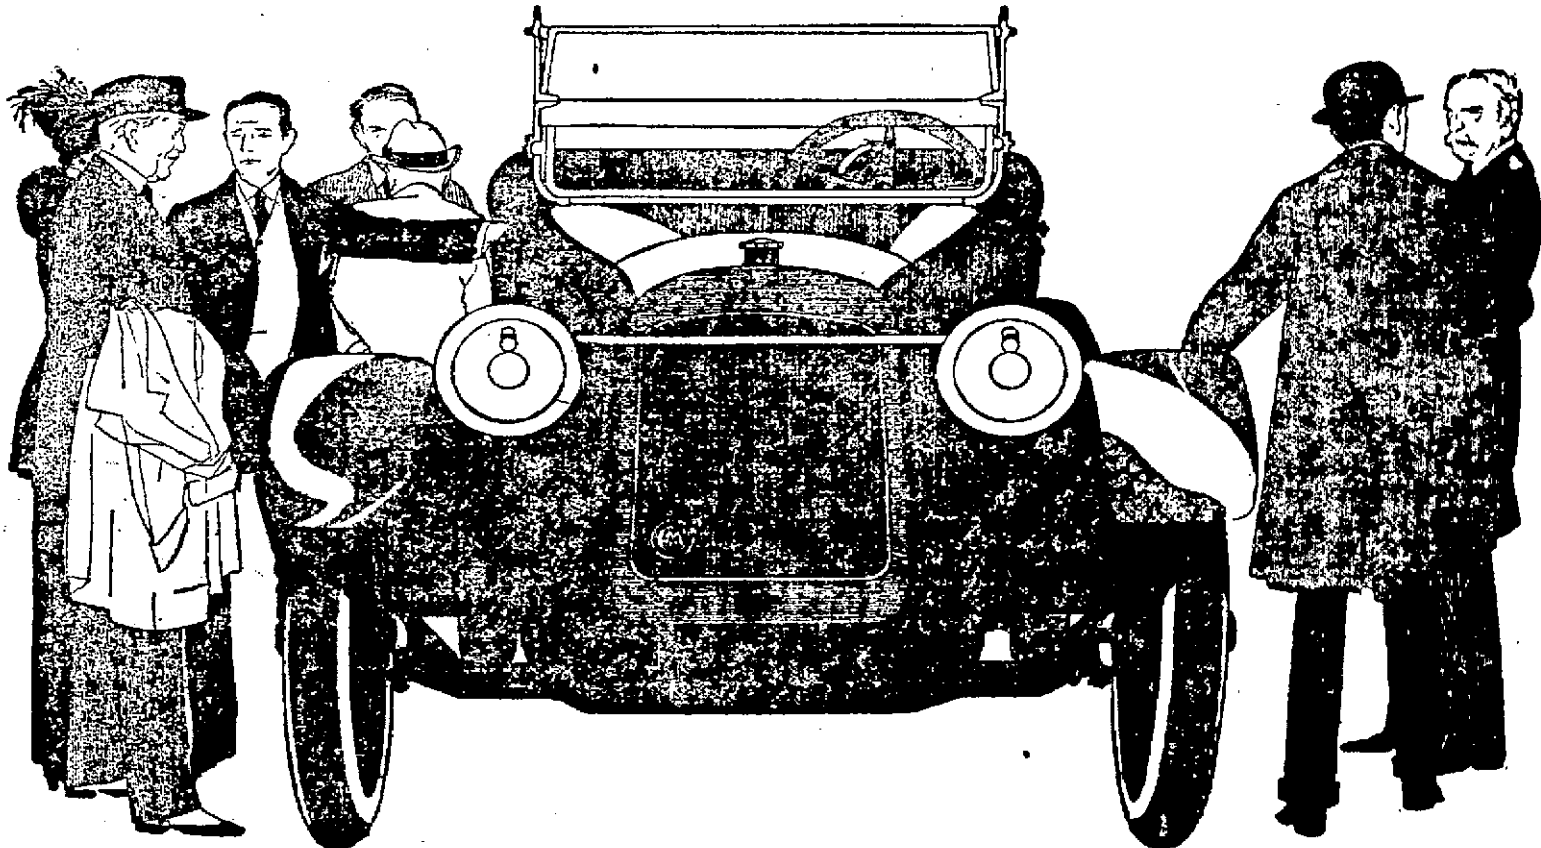

Lawrence, Mich., is a small town about seven miles from Paw Paw, where the Burr Robbins show went into winter quarters in 1883. Burr Robbins, her son-in-law, two others and the writers were Mrs. Webster's guests to a chicken dinner, and while we were all many years her junior, Mrs. Webster had such a bright, cheery way with her that she seemed the youngest of the party.

AS the season of the circuses is drawing to a close, it might be interesting to the readers of the Side Lights to know where the great shows will winter. The Ringling Bros. will make their winter quarters at Baraboo; Al. G. Barnes animal circus, Venice, Cal.; Barnum & Bailey show, Bridgeport, Conn.; Cole Bros. world-toured shows, Hot Springs, Ark.; Gentry Bros. show, Bloomington, Ind.; Gish Bros. show, Danaboo, Wis.; Hagenback-Wallace circus, West Baden, Ind.; Howe's Great London show, Vandiver Park, Montgomery, Ala.; Sells-Floto circus, Denver Post building, Denver, Col.; John Robinson's Vandiver Park, Montgomery, Ala.; John H. Sparks show, Salisbury, N. C.; Sun Bros. show, Macon, Ga.

---and the Worst Is Yet to Come

5 Passenger 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers—$1090 Detroit

QUALITY

That is the Real Secret of the 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers Popularity

Whenever you see the Chalmers trade mark you always see the phrase "Quality First." Whenever you think Chalmers you think "Quality." And if you have been reading my ads or have been in my salesroom, you are impressed with the fact that the 3400 r. p. m. is a Chalmers car of unusual quality.

I've often said that it is, in my opinion, the greatest car the Chalmers Company has built. And I have an excellent reason for saying this. It is a step ahead of any preceding Chalmers because it performs a shade better. The Quality in the new Chalmers is the kind of quality that tells on the road and tells wonderfully.

Now it is just this exceptional quality, just this shade of improvement that has brought Chalmers sales and production ahead in leaps these 12 months past.

I don't think the men in charge of affairs at the Chalmers factory realized what they had in the 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers. At any rate they underestimated the demand. They built more than they had ever produced in any previous season, 'tis true, but still not enough.

The first making order was snapped up quickly. Then came a second lot. These went just as fast.

Now the factory is building the third lot and I understand that Chalmers has no intention of stopping even there. Quality it was that caused this unprecedented demand. Chalmers certainly have the right idea in building cars. "Quality First."

this year in Wisconsin, state and local, was $3,365,659, or $1,300,000 more than in 1915. Local taxes are higher because the method of administering tax laws is taken away from local control. Every rise in local assessments means more taxes and more Another case instructive as to the effects of the tendencies of the day was recently decided by the state railroad commission. In a city governed under the state charter law, that owns its waterworks, abutting property owners must pay all the cost of water mains. These new laws accomplish many unexpected results.

NORTHERN LIGHTS GLEAM FOR A BRIEF HALF HOUR
ON FRIDAY EVENING

Janesville residents who happened to be out in the open and away from the many street lights of the city early yesterday evening, were rewarded by a spectacle of the northern lights such as is seldom seen in this latitude. The display lasted for about half an hour, starting as a mere phosphorescent glow in the northern sky, spreading across the entire reach of the horizon as a soft white glow. In a few minutes, however, there shot forth a series of infinitely long white streamers, like the rays of a gigantic searchlight reaching no up-up into the central sky overhead. These flickered and disappeared, dimmed and brightened, broadened into a great white band flaring up into the heavens, and narrowed to a mere line of brilliant whiteness.

Soon a series of these separate rays seemed to climb into the heavens and there coalesce into a gigantic curtain of white light, waving into brilliance here and folding back into the blackness of night the next morning traveling to and fro across the skies in long undulating movements like the rush of a huge white velvet porriere. Then there appeared just above the horizon a long uneven band of white light, tinted the least bit with green, lying like a huge snake just above the tree tops. This gradually increased in intensity, until suddenly like some mighty explosion of fireworks there burst upward a restless suffusion of light, racing back and forth, and flickering up now green, now pink, now white. Then as suddenly as it had broken forth it faded out, leaving the northern sky calm and black.

Build A City Tabernacle.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 7.—One hundred business men took a day off today to build a tabernacle. Armed with hammer, saws, squares, and other tools of the building trade, they met this afternoon, proceeded to the city hay market in the center of the city and began erecting a structure which when finished is expected to accommodate 2,500 for a revival which will be opened tomorrow by Rev. James Heyburn.
